ASSESSMENT DATE

[Session date]

BUSINESS TYPE

Field service, 8 people

PRIMARY FOCUS

Ticket-to-invoice

Executive summary

THE PAIN

About 14 hours a week go into moving the same information between systems that already half-talk to each other. Most of it is re-keying closed tickets into invoices and answering the same five customer questions by hand.

THE OUTCOME

Set up what you already pay for, add one connector and one AI assistant that knows your business. Nine of those hours come back, and billable work stops slipping between ticket and invoice.

PRIMARY FOCUS

Closed ticket → draft invoice

WHERE THE VALUE IS

Impact-effort matrix

HIGH IMPACT, LOW EFFORT

Quick wins

01	Overdue invoices chased by hand	→	Accounting package reminder schedule
02	Same five questions, typed fresh	→	Saved replies in the helpdesk
03	Re-asking for address and photos	→	Required fields on the intake form
04	Monday report rebuilt by hand	→	Assistant with a saved report template
05	Status answers dug out of tickets	→	Assistant drafts it, a person approves
06	Closed tickets re-keyed into invoices	→	Closed ticket creates a draft invoice

Tool · Make or Zapier

What comes after quick wins

01

Find the billing that never got invoiced

After 30 days of the connector, compare invoiced line items with closed tickets. That gives you the real leak figure.

ACCOUNTING + HELPDESK REPORTS

02

Triage prep, with the call staying yours

The assistant collects missing details and suggests a priority. You still pick the tech. That decision is how you protect your best contracts.

CLAUDE + HELPDESK

03

One weekly view of tickets, invoices and cash

Once the data flows, the Monday report becomes a live view instead of a rebuild.

INTEGRATION + REPORTING
